

STOCKPILE DESTRUCTION:
PREVENTION IN ACTION

www.stopclustermunitions.org

The Convention on Cluster Munitions requires States Parties to destroy their stockpiles within eight years. This obligation is at the heart of the Convention's goal to prevent further suffering from cluster munitions. The destruction of stockpiles means a future with no more use, no more risk of contaminated land and no new victims.

More than 85 million submunitions have already been destroyed by States Parties. That's more than 60% of all States Parties' declared stockpiles. Destroying stockpiles can be done at a low cost, using simple methods. For states that need help with destruction, international assistance is available. Stockpile destruction is one of the greatest successes of the Convention so far. Let's keep it going!
